

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is widely acknowledged that intimate partner and sexual violence are gender based crimes.

In addition, KFACC recognizes that racialized persons, persons with disabilities, Indigenous persons, trans-persons, non-binary and those in the LGBTQ2S+ community are also disproportionately affected by violence through deep-rooted systemic oppression.

KFACC is committed to ensuring our protocols and operations better reflect the community of KFL&A and are working towards changes that better reflect an anti-racist/anti-oppressive (AR/AO) framework and promote equal access for all persons.

COMMUNITY MEMBERS

KFACC welcomes individual community members who accept and adhere to the mandate, belief statements, guiding principles and accountability mechanisms for KFACC.

If you would like to join KFACC as a Community Member, please contact us:

info@kfacc.org
www.kfacc.org

The See It. Name It. Change It! campaign empowers individuals to take action against Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) and Gender-Based Violence (GBV) in our communities.

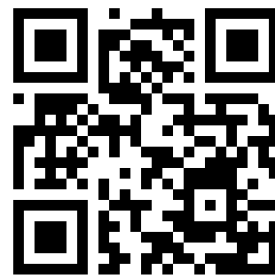

By identifying, calling out, and challenging IPV, we can work together to stop it in our communities.

Think of it like the fire safety rule we all know: Stop, Drop, and Roll. It's simple and easy to remember.

When you see IPV / GBV and name it by calling it out, you're already taking the first step toward change.

It's simple. It's powerful.
And it's something we can all do!

Learn More:
www.kfacc.org

WHAT WE DO

KFACC contributes to the eradication of violence by promoting individual and community awareness of issues relating to intimate partner and sexual violence. We problem-solve and develop projects to help identify gaps in services, create public awareness, and develop community resources.

We work together to sustain a coordinated community response to intimate partner and sexual violence, while serving as a collective voice used to address issues in a clear, effective way.

WHO WE ARE

KFACC consists of volunteer representatives from agencies providing services for victims of intimate partner and sexual violence, their families, agencies that work with perpetrators and community members. We include organizations working throughout the city of Kingston, Frontenac County, and in some parts of Lennox & Addington County.

The sectors represented on our committee include law enforcement and justice, shelter and housing, health, education, mental health and counselling support. The different perspectives and expertise we each bring to KFACC enable us to develop a full understanding of the challenges, issues and priorities for our clients, our communities, and one another.

We are dedicated volunteers working together to advance our common mandate to end violence. KFACC serves as a collective voice used to address the issues in a clear, focused, effective way.

The principles that guide and inform our work include Safety, Confidentiality, Respect, Dignity, Inclusiveness, Community Awareness and Education

KFACC IS FUNDED BY MCCSS

HEY KFL&A

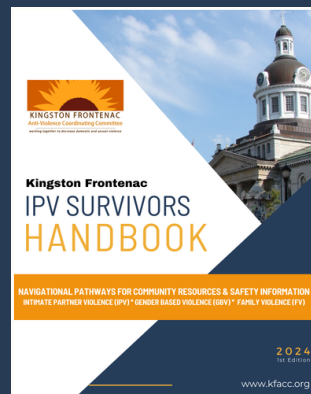

Help Is Available

The Kingston Frontenac IPV Survivor Handbook:

Navigational Pathways for Community
Resources & Safety Information

The IPV Survivors Handbook helps victims/survivors, and their families, navigate the many KFL&A agencies offering services in our community. It contains contact information, important checklists, community resources, navigational paths and safety information.

Access the IPV Survivors Handbook for free from www.kfacc.org or through the QR Code below:

OUR PROTOCOLS

In 2003, a Partner Abuse Protocol was developed by the Coordinating Committee Against Domestic Assault on Women (CCADAOW) for service providers in the Kingston Frontenac region. The Sexual Assault Protocol was launched in 2008 by the Sexual Assault Emergency Protocol Committee.

Both now managed by KFACC, these documents have helped establish a coordinated community response to intimate partner and sexual violence.

They set out guidelines and best practices for providing services to victims, and facilitate strengthened communication and cooperation among service providers.

